

Rush to find another issue

To the Editor:

As most individuals are aware, Rush Limbaugh is a national talk show host who (has the most) radio stations and the largest listening audience of all talk show hosts. Unfortunately, almost all of his time on radio is spent demeaning the president's indiscretions. There are other issues that are crucial to our country's interests such as the Middle East crisis, Social Security fund survival, unemployment, economic concerns, results of weather damage, etc. Our citizens deserve a diversified agenda so we can be more knowledgeable about current events and the concerns of other Americans.

The criticism of Mr. Limbaugh is not based upon his political position, but his restricted agenda. The responsibility of a talk show host is to provide a medium to express and share varied concerns. Also, Mr. Limbaugh spends an excessive amount of his radio time talking and limits his audience time to participate and offer their views.

It is recommended that listeners call the Rush Limbaugh show and express the above criticism. The writer of this "opinion" will do exactly that.
